Hi,

I really like the idea of a deposit scheme but I think the key to making it a success is to ensure that all retailers who sell the items originally also take the returns. I would even go so far as to say, they need to take them at "point of sale" for example a supermarket delivering to a home should collect empties at the same time. And they should do so at no cost. Otherwise the scheme may not have as much impact as possible.

Very best,
