vulnerable who have done nothing to contribute to climate change but will bear the burden of our negligence and taxes. Listen to the voice of the people - we want system change, not climate change. greed. Please do the right thing. Studies have shown the majority of people want to see real action taken on carbon have the courage to look at our current situation from the perspective of future generations and those most from corporations, business and the agricultural sector to not meet these targets, but my deepest hope is that you It is essential that Ireland steps up to take real action to limit the impact of climate change. I know there is pressure
